

Ex-pat Kiwi starts tour at Montana Brancott Winery

Jackie Bristow, ex-pat singer/songwriter living in LA, makes a trip home to perform songs from her stunning new album Crazy Love as part of a nationwide tour.

She will perform in Blenheim tonight at the Montana Brancott Winery.

Bristow has spent the better part of the last decade touring the United States, Europe and Australia with an impressive array of notable artists including Daniel Lanois, Art Garfunkel, Madeleine Peyroux and Renee Geyer.

She returns to New Zealand for a nine date tour.

"It is great to be playing back in NZ," she says.

"After years spent building my career in Aussie and the US, I feel it is important for me to connect to my home country again and remember where I came from.

"I've missed the sense of community here in New Zealand, the care and integrity of the people."

● Tickets cost $10 (or $35 with meal included) and are available at the venue. The show starts at 7pm.
