Jackie Bristow, a New Zealand native who's making waves in her adopted home of Australia, Bristow is a singer-songwriter with a penchant for sweet melodies and hypnotic tones. She counts Patty Griffin and Crowded House as favourites, and her style incorporates a bit of both, blending Neil Finn's airy pop smarts with Griffin's emotional directness and vibrancy. Bristow's low soprano is seductive and soulful; she never presses or wails, but instead lets her voice deliver her probing, slice-of-life songs in laced silk. Her second album, Crazy Love, just became available in America and she's making her first stateside tour, accompanied by Aussie guitarist Mark Punch. 3rd & Lindsley – MICHAEL McCALL
